

JAUME VILASECA TRIO
JAZZNESIS II
THE MUSIC OF GENESIS 1970-1974

JAUME VILASECA TRIO & MAR

Jazz project with the inclusion of the young promise Mar Vilaseca on the music of the British progressive rock band Genesis, within the period between “Trespass” (1970) and “The lamb lies down on Broadway” (1974). It is the continuation of the “Jazznesis” project (Discmedi, 2008), but it brings the Genesis songs to the Mediterranean and Latin styles and it includes flamenco arrangements.

Mar Vilaseca, Pop Jazz singer at the beginning of her music career, joins the band, giving the project a new color. Her youthfulness adds a special energy to the trio, opening doors to other markets and sectors in the music industry. Nowadays, this project has been programmed for the San Javier Jazz Festival 2016.

Jazznesis II, the seventh album of J.V., completes the work of Genesis, revisited and arranged by this composer, delivering a unique style and providing touches from our music. We believe the cultural interest of this project, besides fostering young talent like Mar, consists in showcasing the Spanish cultural diversity, bringing together Classic Flamenco and a very progressive Jazz in the original style of the Mediterranean influences in Jaume Vilaseca’s music.

In order to celebrate the centenary of Enrique Granados, the band will pay tribute to the composer at the end of every concert, performing a Jazz version of one of his compositions.

As long as it is possible, Jaume Vilaseca can include pedagogical sessions to his concerts in the form of workshops and master classes. In most cases, these sessions are free. Vilaseca is also a lecturer at the Liceu High School.
